

Looking after Aston Hall

Aston Hall is 400 years old. It is full of very precious items. It is open to the public but they need to be careful so people in the future will have the house and its contents to enjoy too.

Go from to the rooms labelled below and write in the boxes things you would tell visitors to help them look after the house and its contents.

Look about you for ideas:-

- strings are tied on some chairs so you would tell people not to sit on these.
- think about why you should tell visitors not to cross ropes into rooms.
- should the items be touched?
- how would you tell people to walk on stairs or down the Long Gallery?
- should people shout?
- can they run?
- Could you mention damage by people to stop others doing the same? e.g. marks of high heel shoes
